

Cornerstone
UNIVERSITY®

Professional & Graduate Studies

Dorothy and Toto's Kettle Corn

Posted by rhunter on October 29th, 2010

by Cachell Clay

Take a left onto Leonard driving until you get to Plainfield and then take a right. Just where Plainfield and Julia cross, there is a small modest shop with a brightly colored open flag.

There you will find Dorothy & Toto's Kettle Corn. Once you get inside, there's not much; just a small place to get great popcorn.

There are two small rooms and towards the front is a sign that shows prices along with a register. There are also shelves with the popcorn and baskets that resemble the gingham that Dorothy wore on her trip to Oz. In the other room, customers can look in and see two men standing over large silver kettles. Placed above the Kettle corn room was a sign that read, "Nobody gets in to see the wizard... Not nobody not no how."

There are three sizes which you can buy. A small (that isn't that small, and a serving is only 120 calories), for only $2.50, a large for $3.50 and jumbo for $5.00. The prices are dirt cheap and the popcorn has a crunchy texture, with amazing balance of sweet and salty flavor. They don't offer other flavors or anything fancy, they specialize in one thing, and that one thing they do well.

Overall, Dorothy and Toto's really honed the gift they were given to make the store stand on its own two feet. It definitely doesn't hurt how they used theme to pique the interest of customers.

Although they aren't opened past seven, the price and portions are amazing! My Get Out Score is !!!!
Out of !!!!!

If you're looking for popcorn with a great crunch at an amazing price I encourage you to Get Out to Dorothy and Toto's Kettle Corn.